

Refractory Products

Because we know each single refractory part is playing a capital role in the whole production process. We spend time to have a accurate “picture” of our customers’ production and furnaces conditions. Our engineers continuously help each customer to select the most adapted refractory product for different application types.

EAF Refractory

Refractory products for EAF application

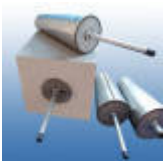

Ladle Refractory

Refractory products for Ladle application

Tundish Refractory

Refractory products for Tundish application

Plates - Plugs - Nozzles

According to the customers' production and furnace working conditions, we can analyze, select and supply different types of prefabricated refractory parts for different application types. For Ladle Description Material ...